

ICSR + Health 2027

Social robots for health and wellbeing

July 25–28, 2027 in Potsdam, Germany

Call for Papers

The International Conference on Social Robotics (ICSR) is the foremost global forum for researchers, academics, and industry professionals dedicated to the expansive field of social robotics. For its 19th edition, ICSR 2027 introduces the special theme ICSR + Health, exploring how robotics and health intersect. While this theme will receive special attention, the conference warmly welcomes contributions across the full breadth of social robotics research and applications.

Topics of interest include (but are not limited to):

- Social robotics
- Human-robot interaction and collaboration
- Assistive and rehabilitation robotics
- Care
- Mental health and companionship
- Healthy ageing
- Clinical, ethical and societal implications
- Industrial contexts

Submission formats:

- Regular Papers (12–15 pages including references):
  original, unpublished research as Main Track or Special Session paper
- Short Papers (6–15 pages including references):
  presented as posters, images, videos + teaser talks
- Special Session Proposals (3–4 pages):
  emerging topics of high interest
- Workshop Proposals (3–4 pages):
  interactive formats, half/full day
- Grand Challenge (Maximum 2-page summary document):
  People's Choice awards
- Future Forum:
  Critically explore pressing issues emerging in social robotics and health
- Health Innovation Hub (Short description):
  Early-stage robotics and tech companies to showcase their innovations

All accepted full and short papers will be published in Springer LNAI (Lecture Notes in Artificial Intelligence) and indexed by SpringerLink, Scopus, EI Compendex and more. Selected papers may be invited for journal special issues.
